

Episode 2.7

Your Online Profiles

Name: _____

Date: _____

"If you are an actor and you're pursuing acting as a career... you're going to have to register on several online profiles."
- Abbie

Getting Your Digital House in Order

Putting yourself in a position to regularly submit for auditions takes some time on the front end. You'll want to be as thorough as possible when choosing your subscription tiers, uploading photos and video, and entering your resume to give yourself the best possible chance of success. It might be tedious work, but making sure everything's done right the first time will save you lots of headaches in the future.

Here are a few online profiles to consider:

1. A _____ A _____. One of the major services that allows you to submit for acting roles across the country.
2. LA C _____. Allows you to submit for TV, theater, commercials, student films, short films, etc. Requires payment if you don't have an agent. Another one of the big ones.
3. A _____ P _____. A service that allows for customizable submissions to Rep or for a particular project.
4. C _____ F _____. Another popular acting role self submission service.
5. I _____ P _____. An actor profile that allows you to build a public digital resume as well as deep dive research other actors, directors, reps, production companies, and studios.

NOTES

[DEFINITION] Financial Core: Placing your Union Status on hold either to work a non-union job, because of financial hardship, or in protest of a Union stance.